The rejoinder to this is contained in the Novem-

2. The statement in the Knickerbocker that all the facts which Irving did derive from Navarette,

not accessible elsewhere, would not fill six pages, is vacue and unmeaning. If taken literally, the writer says, it is doubtless true-for all the documents in Navarette's collection are 'accessible elsewhere.' And so was America as 'accessible'

before its discovery as after :- yet Columbus still has some merit for having found out its accessibility-as has Navarette for having discovered

those documents. The writer proceeds to show that the History of Columbus contains the result of every new discovery that Navarette had made,

and avails itself with perfect freedom of all the narratives he had brought to light. The citations from the work are more than one hundred : and there is reference through Irving's whole work to but two original documents not to be found in Navarette. These facts, and the brief time in which Irving's History was completed, the writer thinks sustain the charge that he was indebted to the points in controversy, with the evidence by which they are urged and repelled. The writer in the Mes-

'impudent,' 'impotent' or 'malignant': for they are written with great ability, apparently with an accurate knowledge of the subject, and certainly with all the courtesy and fairness which any one can ask. How far the defence of the Knicker-course, to decide for himself. We confess that,

thus far, it seems to us the writer in the Messen-think the Editor of the Knickerbocker errs, too, in

THE TRIBUNE.

Irving's Columbus.

In our notice of the Knickerbocker for Decemher a few days since, we alluded to an elaborate paper in the Southern Literary Messenger, in which WASHINGTON IRVING is charged with having appropriated to his own use, without proper scknowledgement, the labors of Don Martin Fernandez Navarette-a Spanish gentleman of emipent literary abilities and especially celebrated for his very columinous collection of manuscripts relative to the early voyages of Columbus, made fellowing is the substance of his positions: with long ontinued toil and at great expense .-The literary fame of Mr. IRVING stands so high that whatever assails it in the remotest point becomes a matter of general interest; and, as in our former notice we merely alluded to the charges. without due reference to an article in refutation of them, which appeared in the August number of the Knickerbocker, we think it both just and proper to present a brief statement of both sides of the controversy.

The subject was first opened in two articles of some length in the Southern Literary Messenger for March, 1841, and May, 1842-purporting to be a review of Navarette on Spain, but being mainly occupied with an examination of the Life of Celumbus by Irving, with especial reference to his indebtedness to the labors of Navarette. The charge was there brought forward-that Mr. Ir. ving was thus indebted to the work of another and that his Preface, in which reference to the authorities he consulted is made, does not "convey any just idea of the obligation which a comparison of the two works demonstrates that he owes.' The writer proceeds at great length to establish this position by reference to the circumstances under which Mr. Irving's work was written, and by a direct comparison of the two. The first thing noted is the fact that Navarette was employed for thirty-five years with industrious associates, under pay of the Spanish Government, in seeking ou among the libraries of Spain the documents relat ing to her elder voyagers. In 1825 two volumes of his work were published, covering a thousand closely printed pages and containing the history of the first voyage to America written by Columbus himself, that of the second written by Dr. Chanca, the companion of Columbus, those of the third and fourth from the great man's own hand, together with a great number of diplomatic documents and other papers bearing upon the subject. Very many of these had never before seen the light. Just as the work came from the press Mr. IRVING was found in Madrid and in twenty-one months thereafter his History in three octavo volumes came finished from his hands.

In his preface to the History Mr. IRVING States that his work was digested from various sources: 1. books in various languages relating to Columbus, but containing incomplete accounts of his life and voyages; 2. numerous valuable tracts on the subject which existed only in manuscript, letters, journals, &c. The books were accessible in the public libraries of Madrid: "the manuscripts were found where they were known to exist and placed at the author's disposal by the liberality of their pos sessors." The publication of Navarette is referred to as containing many documents before unknown, but presenting "rather a mass of rich materials for history than a history itself." "With these and other aids," says Mr. Irving, "I have endeavored to the best of my abilities and the time I could allow myself, during a sojourn in a foreign country, to construct this history. I have diligently collated all the works that I could find relative to my subject, in print and manuscript, comparing them as far as in my power with original documents." This acknowledgement, coupled as it is with the claim to original research, the writer in the Messenger thinks quite insufficient and unworthy the high fame of Mr. IRVING. The impression left upon the public by the Preface, the critic says, is that the whole merit of profound, original and protracted research is laid at Mr. Irving's door. None of the notices of the work of Inving, collected and prefixed to an abridgement of his History of which the copyright was held by himself, make the slightest mention of Navarette, but claim for Irving the praise of having himself discovered, by personal research during some years of his life the original documents for his History. This the writer maintains is a false and most unjust impression-entirely unsupported by

In the Knickerbocker for July 1842 is a brief editorial notice of the paper in the Messenger, in which the writer is sneeringly spoken of as a "querulous fault-finder"-an "envious literary non-producer:" his "highly probable statement' is said " of course to have excited little attention;" and the editor premises to take an early occasion to "puncture the bladder which the self-complacent critic has inflated." In the August number about four pages of the Knickerbocker are devoted to the redemption of this promise. The general acknowledgements contained in the Preface of Mr. Irving are cited as amply sufficientand several places are referred to through the work in which Navarette's Journal is expressly quoted. The editor quotes also a paragraph from an introduction by Navarette to the third volume of his work, written after the appearance of Irving's History, in which Irving is spoken of as "the first who has availed himself of our [Navarette's ] publication;" and in which the position of Mr. Irving "situated in Madrid, with an opportunity of examining excellent books and precious manuscripts, and having always at hand the authentic documents which we had just published,' is alluded to as eminently favorable for the production of his superior work. This the editor thinks a "frank avowal of satisfaction and admiration" on the part of Navarette himself. The question was written by one of the mutineers on

"Mr. Irving did no more than to avail himself of the accorded right to use the documents thus published, which he enjoyed in common with evevery other historian; and this he gratefully acknowledges in his preface and by frequent citatations throughout his work. Nevertheless, we owe it to his reputation to state, as the result of a careful examination, that all the facts which he actually did derive from this source, not accessible elsewhere, would not collectively fill six of the case of th

The Whigs of Connecticut are not discouraged at the unfavorable result of the recent elections; a rush to the polls at the Spring Election as will LIEBIG'S AGRICULTURAL CHEMISTRY .. 25 strike terror to the hearts of our opponents. The result of the late Town Meetings is decisive evidence of this—the Whigs having carried, in Hart-ford County 14 of the 21 towns. Last year the Life AND TIMES OF LOUIS PHILIPPE...25 Locos boasted of having carried 13, and the Whigs was satisfied with the acknowledgement in the work of Irving, the writer thinks it entitled to lit- ouly 3. One year's reign of Loco-Focoism has made the principles of that party perfectly detestable to the enlightened Freemen of Connecticut. A new feeling has sprung up among the Whigs of Connecticut-a feeling of hope, and a determination on their art to strike one more blow for Liberty. It was FRANKLIN EVANS, or the Instrict. Price .. 124 he fortune of old Connecticut to be the first State to confirm the aomination of Gen. HARRISON for the office of President. It was she that fired the first gun, in the memorable coutest of 1840, which overwhelmed the Loco Focos in disappointment and defeat. And new it will be hers to turn back ihe tide of apathy which has flowed in among the Whig ranks. This she can and will do. And that she will set such an example next Spring to the Whigs throughout the country, as will be worthy of their imitation, cannot for a moment admit of a doubt. The Whigs are at this moment eager for the contest.

At the Election last Spring, when the Whigs scarcely made any exertions, and the Locos strained every nerve, neither party had a majority. When such was the result then, what may be expected when the Whigs come out in their full force, firm and united, and deposit their votes in the ballot-box as expressive of their disapprobation of the VENETIA, by D'Israeli.... desperate proceeding of the last Legislature! This the Freemen of Connecticut will do, and you may rest assured that the Whig candidate for Governor next Spring will be elected by Five Thou-SAND majority, at the least calculation.

Yours, &c. We hope all our correspondent's hopes will be realized; but we are not yet sure of it. That Connecticut will cast her vote heavily for HENRY CLAY in 1844, we never had a doubt, but we shall be satisfied with one thousand majority next Spring [Ed. Tribune. for a Whig Governor.

ILLINOIS .- The Legislature of Illinois met at at Springfield on the 7th inst. On counting the votes for Governor given at the recent election .-They were found to stand thus :

Chas. W. Hunter, (Ab.)..... 911

The Message of Governor Carlin is quite long and occupied entirely with the discussion of State affairs. The prospects of the State are indeed gloomy and dark. The Governor presents a histhe Knickerbocker bestows upon him: there is no tory of the measures by which the State has been plunged into her present embarrassments, with an Theop's Asthony, Daniel L. Gray, William H. Thorn. account of the origin and accumulation of the public debt. The whole amount of that debt is stated at $13,836,379-though part of this will be met by provisions already made-so that the sum properly chargeable with interest will be $11,171,379, the interest upon which at 6 per cent. per annum, amounts to $670,282. For the payment of this sum annually, the faith and credit of the State are solemnly and irrevocably pledged.

To meet this annual payment the Governor says there are but two resources upon which the State can rely: 1. The landed property of the State, and 2. A resort to direct taxation. The State owns 489.450 acres of lami-but will be impossible to render any of it available at present. The only resource, then, is direct taxation: and with regard to this, the Governor says that the amount of new land becoming liable to taxation is rapidly diminshing, as is also the value of all taxable property. He is therefore constrained to recommend a reduction, instead of an increase, in the amount of tax-

"Owing (says the Message) to our accumulated misfortunes, the tides of emigration and wealth have ceased to flow into the State. All the channels of trade are completely obstructed, and the vitality of business seems almost extinct. In many places money cannot be realized in sufficient amounts to answer as a medium of exchange. The products of the country cannot be disposed of for cash at any price, and remain unavailable on the hands of the producers, or are bartered for the necessary articles of domestic consumption. The greatest inconvenience and difficulty will be expenenced in producing current funds for the payment of taxes. To increase the rate at the present time would be to inflict general embarrassment and distress, and impose upon the people a burthen which they could not possibly endure. Therefore, I am forced to the unpleasant and humiliating conviction, that you cannot from this source, or any other at your command, make any permanent provision for the payment of interest.'

He recommends, therefore, that the State go into liquidation by placing the lands owned by her, by legislative enactment, at the option of the holders of the bonds. The adoption of this measure, says, would at least evince a willingness on the part of the State to do justice to her creditors to the utmost of her ability, and should they be disposed to avail themselves of it, might enable her to reduce her debt, perhaps to a manageable sum.

The Governor protests against the Distribution of the Proceeds of the Public Lands, and thinks Illinois ought not to receive her share-probably because she does not need it! The remainder of the Message is occupied with matters of local interest. It recommends the repeat of the charters of the two State Banks.

WONDERFUI- EFFECTS OF SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA IN NORWICE

long resided at the Falls. The facts are well known to an the old residents in that part of the city.

Mesars, A. B. Sands & Co., Sirs: dost gratefully do I embrace this opportunity for stating to you the great relief I obtained from the use of your Sarsaparilla. I shall also be happy, through you, to publish to all who are afflicted, as I lately was, the account of my unexpected, and even for a long while despaired of cure. Mine is a painful story and single-pained of cure. and trying and sickening as is the narrative of it, for the sake of many who may be so surely relieved, I will briefly yet accurately state it.

Nineteen years ago last April a Rtof sickness left me will an Erysipelas eruption. Dropsical collections immediately took place over the entire surface of my body, causing such an enhancement that it was necessary to add a half yard to the size of my dresses around the waist. Next followed upon my limbs, alcers, painful beyond description. For years, both in summer and winter, the only mitigation and the property of the p upon my limbs, ulcers, painful beyond description. For years, both in summer and winter, the only mitigation of my suffering was found in pouring upon those parts cold water. From my limbs the pain extended over my whole body. There was literally for me no rest, by day or by might. Upon lying down these pains would shoot through my system, and compel me arise, and, for hours together, walk the house, so that I was almost entirely deprived of sleep. During this time the Erysipelas continued active, and the nicers enlarged, and so desply have these caten, that for two and a half years they have been subject to bleeding. During these almost twenty years I have consulted many physicians. These have called my disease—as it was attended with an obstinate cough, and a steady and active pain in my side—a dropsical consumption; and though they have been skilful practitioners, they were only able to afford my case a partial and temporary relief I had many other difficulties to complicated to describe. I have also used many of the mediciness that have been recommended as intallible cures for this disease, yet these all fadied, and I was most emphatically growing worse. In this critical condition, given up by tirends, and expecting for myself, relief only in death, I was by the timely interposition of a king Providence, lumished with your, to see, invaluable Sarsaparilla. A single bottle gave me an assurance of health, which for twenty years I had not once telt. Upon taking the second, my enlargement diminished, and in twelve days from the 8th October, when I comance of health, which for twenty years I had not once left. Upon taking the second, my enlargement diminished, and in twelve days from the 8th October, when I commenced taking your Sarsaparilla, I was able to ciply sleep andrest, by night, as retreshing as any Lever enjoyed when in perfect health. Besides, I was, in this short time, relieved from all those excrutating and unallevisted pains that had afflicted my days, as well as robbed me of my right's repose. The ticers upon my limbs are licated, the Erysipelas cured, and my size reduced nearly to my former measure.

former measure.

Thus much do I feel it a privilege to testify to the efficacy of your health-restoring Sarsaparilla. A thousand thanks, sirs, from one whose comfort and whose lope of thanks, sirs, from one whose comfort and whose Lope of future health are due, under God, to your instrumentality. And may the same Providence that directed me to your aid, make you the happy and honored instruments of blessing others, as diseased and despatring as your much relieved and very grateful friend.

New-York, Oct. 19, 1342.

Messrs. Sands—Gentlemen: If you alone were concerned in the present statement, the great inducement for making it would be removed; for of course no testimony can strengthen your own convictions in relation to the value and efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, which has already proved such a blessing to the many hundreds who have used it. But I have looked upon the world encircing in its arms thousands bowed down with sufferings similar tensy own, who would gladly hasten to the same source that restored my health. If they were persuaded they would sheet with the same happy results. Therefore gentlemen, it is that those thousands may be convinced, and profit by their conviction as I have done, that induces me to state be fore the world a period of suffering such as few have known, and the permanent relief I received from your Sarsaparilla. But how shall I begin, or how describe those excruciating agonies that seized upon my frame? Early excruciating agonies that seized upon my frame? Early in the month of June, 1840, I was first attacked with rheumatism, caused, I have reason to be contracted while nursing one of my children, who was there

My suffering soon became intense, everywhere I seeme diseased. For five months I was unable to walk, and for six weeks did not lie upon a bed, but was obliged to remain in a sitting posture, that being less agouizing than any oth er. My whole body was so sore and racked with pain that the slightest touch caused inexpressible distress. For a period of many months I did not sleep but two nights, and the only rest I obtained was during the day, when nature became exhausted and I fell into a slumber, from which I was soon awakened by the heating and throbbing pain. My limbs were swollen and my shoulders drawn out of place, and altogether I was rendered entirely helpless. I obtained the best medical advice, but without receiving any permanant relief. The rhennatism being combined with a swell-My whole body was so sore and racked with ent relief. The rheumatism being combined with nent relief. The rheadast of the joints, rendered it still werse, ing and painful affection of the joints, rendered it still werse. Tumors formed under the skin, round my head, which caused burning and lanciating pains similar to scroula of the glands.

My groans at night caused the watchman to stop in the street as he passed by; and when many of my friends residing in Paughkeepsie last visited me, they bid me farewell, as they then thought for ever; and once the family assembled in the room to watch the last spark of lie go out. But the flame of life again glared up within me; and soafter this I heard of your Sarsaparilia, and determined to try it; and behold the result. After taking one bottle the pain left me, and I was able to walk and sleep. I could scarcely realize the transition—so sudden, so complete. Af-ter using four or five bottles, I was entirely cured. And ter using four or five bottles, I was entirely cured. And are you alone, gentlemen, concerned to know it? I think not; and this language is too mild for the occasion. For I know that the medicine that possesses five power to cure me is capable of conferring the same blessing upon thousands of others suffering—perhaps dying; therefore, these are all concerned to know that they can be cured. In fact, all are concerned in the discovery of any thing that tends to propose the happiages of the human race; for we are social mote the happiness of the human race; for we are beings, and cannot suffer alone. Persons may doub discharged a duty which I felt incumbent upon me in making it known for the benefit of those who choose to believe ing it known for the benefit of those who choose to believe it. And when I look into the past—upon those solitary days and sleepless nights—I thank God that I am as I am. And I thank you, gentlemen, that you have made science minister unto our infirmities, and I for one, will proclaim the Respectfully, ANN BROWN, 479 Houston-street.
